COOL HUNTER GUIDE NOV 12- NOV 18

DESIGN

OBSIDIAN TEAR, Wayne McGregor's co-production with The Royal Ballet has made its way to the Boston Opera House. Obsidian Tear is a stunning contemporary piece made up of an entirely male cast. It weaves together raw drama, violence and vulnerability with an overwhelming layer of grace and precision.

OBSIDIAN TEAR

Boston Opera House, Downtown
Sunday 11/12 @ 1:30PM

Insidertip: Obsidian Tear is the first ballet that has been "styled" instead of "costumed."

Fashion editor for London's AnOther Magazine, Katie Shillingford, outfitted all of the dancers in ready-to-wear designer clothing.

MUSIC

3LAU, also known as Justin David Blau, is EDM producer/DJ. He grew up in Las Vegas, which seems obvious when you listen to his progressive-house fused style that flawlessly blends samples into one coherent club banger.

3LAU

Royale Nightclub, Downtown
Friday 11/17 @ 10:00PM

3LAU first discovered electronic music while vacationing in Sweden. Upon returning to college in the US, he started producing mash-ups and gained recognition with his remixes.

Insidertip 3LAU has single handedly raised $200,000 for the non-profit Pencils of Promise. In addition, in 2013 he was able to build his first school with the non-profit and was on his way to building his second.

FUEL

DRINK is like no other bar in Boston. For one, they have no cocktail menu. This no-set-menu philosophy aims to get drinkers out of their well-worn ruts. To put it simply, Drink is not the place to order a vodka soda. A majority of the liquors that are housed in this underground establishment are ones that you probably have not heard of. When you grab a seat at the bar, the only thing expected from you is an open mind and maybe a flavor profile you are going after. Oh, and they have a killer Colorado Wagyu burger.

DRINK

348 Congress St, Seaport
Open Daily for Dinner & Drinks

Insidertip: Any mixologist knows that a drink is only as good as the ice it is poured over. Drink sets the bar high with 50-pound blocks of ice that are carefully hand crafted into crystal-clear, geometrically-perfect shapes and sizes.
